

COLLABORATIVE LAW: FAMILY LAW

Daniel J. Finn, Esq. currently serves as President of the Massachusetts Collaborative Law Council and has been a director since 2000. Dan has presented on the topic of approaches to impasse in negotiation both locally, nationally, and for the International Academy of Collaborative Professionals. Collaborative Law is a process that facilitates communication essential for successful resolution of disputes: "what are our individual needs; how can we both get our needs met in this conflict?" Unfortunately, the unwillingness or inability to have this conversation generates billions of dollars in legal fees every year. In many cases, helping clients have these conversations can produce a satisfying, cost effective resolution.
